

Kyle Gundlach and Conor Sullivan

Desert Robotic

Sheri.gundlach@dsusd.us

Exhibit Board on Fundraising

Fundraising

We have done several different fundraising activities this year to try to raise money for botball. We are going to use an exhibit board to display the different fundraisers that we have done, and write a caption below each picture telling about the fundraiser.

Our school has “Fun Day’s” after each quarter. This is for the kids who did not get any F’s on their report cards, and who have less than 30 demerits. All the teachers do different activities in their rooms and the kids get to choose which room they go to. Most of the rooms you can go in and out of. We have one area where clubs get to sell food and drinks to make money. Students can buy food and drinks and are allowed to take the food with them around campus. We have sold root-beer floats, candy bars and otter-pops at the fun days. We collected over $400 at these fun days.

After school is a great way to make money. We sell snow cones and otter-pops. Our weather is usually pretty warm in the Spring and fall, so these two items sell really well. During the winter we used the botball fundraiser by selling the little bugs. They were a huge hit for about a month, and then students lost interest.

The owner of a local wine shop donated wine and food for a wine-tasting fundraiser. We charged $10 for a ticket and he provided 6 wines to taste with snacks. We provided free baby-sitting at one house while the parents went to the tasting. This turned out to be our best fundraiser of the year.